

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention provides colored iridescent film comprising a core of substantially parallel layers wherein alternate of the layers comprise a first polymer and the remaining layers comprise a second polymer and at least one of the layers contains organic pigment. The present colored iridescent film may advantageously be used in decorative applications such as glitter.